Popular Pickin' in the Park set to take over Shelburne next week

Written By MARNI WALSH

Line dancing will no doubt be a popular new feature at Pickin' in the Park when the event kicks off on July 25.

Taking place in Fiddle Park on the outskirts of town, the popular weekend of camping and music has been an annual event in Shelburne since 2013.

Also new this year, chair yoga, designed for seniors, but great for anyone, led by yoga expert Louise Marcoux Phillips. Patrons can also learn to play the ukulele with Linda McDougall, or fill one of the twenty spots available for flat-picking guitar lessons with Gordon Andrews of Utopia - call 519-217-2969 to book a spot.

The dream of Greg and Heather Holmes, Pickin' in the Park evolved from their love of country music and camping into a hugely successful, annual event. The retired couple, who ran Holmes Appliances and Music Store in Shelburne for many years, say, although they now spend much of the year on the road camping and in Florida during the winter, they "are still part of the community and will continue to work hard to make Fiddle Park a better place."

Pickin' in the Park raised $5,000 in its inaugural year, and with each year the funds have doubled and accumulated. It was so successful, that with the help of the Town of Shelburne and local service clubs, the Holmes' were able to build a pavilion at the park, which is now available for the whole community. Greg Holmes believes the event will pay off the building costs of the pavilion this year, and they have plans in the works to add sides and a cement floor.

The Kinette Club will be serving food from the kitchen in the park during the event, and Saturday night the Shelburne Lions Club will host a Fish Fry - please RVSP online or call 519-217-8037.

The Holmes' told the Free Press, there were close to 250 campers and over 1,000 people for Saturday's events in 2018, and they are expecting at least that many this year with good weather.

It is a big job, but the Holmes say, "We have great friends and volunteers who love to help. The whole weekend is fun, from working tables and serving ice cream to meeting people." Tickets are $25 for a weekend pass or $10 per day. Camping is $80 for the weekend.

Everyone is invited to join in the fun and "bring their musical instruments for a weekend of music and fellowship" Thursday, July 25th to Sunday, July 28 at Fiddle Park, 515677 County Road 11 in Shelburne.

Registration for camping starts at 8:30 a.m. on Thursday. Greg Holmes and the Brewery Boys plus other special guests will begin the entertainment at 7 p.m. Thursday evening in the pavilion.

Heritage Music Festival duo brings 'superstars' to Shelburne

Written By MARNI WALSH

On August 8 at 7 p.m. "Country Superstars Live In Concert" - Chris Ayries and Thomas Wade - will perform their tribute to many of Country's most loved duos at the Heritage Music Festival (HMF) in Shelburne.

The audience will see performances of songs by George and Tammy, Johnny and June, Tim and Faith, and Kenny and Dolly. They will hear the music of other superstars including Merle Haggard, Johnny Cash, Martina McBride, Trisha Yearwood, Marty Robbins, Patty Lovelace, and Ray price to name a few.

"Our Thursday night show will be just like having the real stars up close and personal," says HMF Chair Bobbi Ferguson. "Who doesn't love the music of famous country duos like Kenny and Dolly or Tim and Faith? Even if you are not a diehard Country music fan you will enjoy this evening of tribute to famous Country stars."

According to their bios, singer-songwriter and recording artist Chris Ayries grew up in Ontario. She has sung for the troops in Bosnia and at festivals and concerts across the country. Thomas Wade grew up in small-town Ontario as the oldest son in a musical family. From 1996 to 1999, Thomas Wade and Wayward ruled Country radio earning three Juno Nominations and seven CCMA awards. In 2004, Céline Dion recorded a song he wrote entitled "Come To Me."

"Shelburne is very fortunate to be able to secure an incredible line up of talent for this year's Heritage Music Festival," says Bobbi Ferguson. "I hope that everyone will come out and enjoy it with us."

She reminds residents "that all profits of the festival go to local charities and one dollar from each ticket sold will be going

The Chair also says to be sure to check out the great food, cool beverages and special entertainment on hand throughout Fiddle Weekend, including the Eastern Star's roast beef dinner at the Agricultural Building running from 4:30 p.m. to 7:00 p.m. on August 8 and breakfast at the Shelburne Legion on Saturday, August 10 from 9 a.m. to noon.

A lasagne dinner, sponsored by Besley Country Market will be served on Saturday night before the Fiddle Championship at the CDRC from 4:30 p.m. to 6:00 p.m. Fiddle Contest MC this year, Scott Woods will play a special concert with his band on Saturday at the contest. Also of note, Dufferin Public House is the official pub of the Heritage Music Festival.

The Heritage Music Festival, featuring the 69th Canadian Open Old Time Fiddle Championship, will take place August 7 to August 11 at the Centre Dufferin Recreation Complex sponsored by the Rotary Club of Shelburne. The event features a variety of entertainers, as well as Canada's top fiddlers in competition for thousands of dollars in prizes.

Community events include: camping, Bands and Brews at Fiddle Park, a pork barbecue, Fiddle Parade, and a non-denominational church service. Tickets are available for individual events, or as a weekend pass online at eventbrite.ca or at Pazazz Fashion, 122 Owen Sound Street in Shelburne.

Province investing in local schools to improve math curriculum

Written By MIKE BAKER

The provincial government has unveiled a new plan to improve math skills amongst students across Ontario.

Dufferin-Caledon MPP Sylvia Jones confirmed on Tuesday that school boards operating in the riding would, collectively, be receiving more than $3 million to help develop new programs and strategies to bolster the provincial math curriculum for both high school and elementary school students.

"I am pleased that our government is investing in the students and schools boards of Dufferin-Caledon and Peel Region to build the math knowledge and skills students need to succeed in class and in the future," Ms. Jones stated.

The funding announcement will see Peel District School Board receive an additional $1.5 million, the Dufferin-Peel Catholic District School Board will get an extra $780,000, while Upper Grand District School Board will receive just over $500,000. Conseil scolaire Viamonde, the local French school board, will receive just under $310,000.

The investments are part of a four-year strategy that will focus on applying fundamental math concepts and skills in area schools. Over the next year, the provincial government will invest $55 million to "ensure students are prepared for their future career paths".

"We are listening to parents and educators," said Stephen Lecce, Ontario's Minister of Education. "Ontario students need greater support to strengthen their math skills to achieve success in school and into their careers. This investment provides our young people with access to the skills they need to enter the workforce with confidence, and further underscores our government's focus on STEM (science, technology, engineering and math) in the classroom."

Across Ontario, and here in Dufferin-Caledon, EQAQ math assessment results for Grade 3 and Grade 6 students have declined in recent years. To change this trend, the Province is rolling out a revised math curriculum for all grades over the next four years. In addition, new teachers will be required to pass a math content knowledge test, starting in Spring 2020.

"This will ensure that teachers are confident and capable of teaching math before entering the classroom. In addition, these efforts will ensure that students in Dufferin-Caledon and across Ontario are receiving a quality education that will provide them with necessary skills to be successful in the future," a release sent out by Ms. Jones reads.

Community Living Dufferin launches innovative social enterprise initiative

Written By MIKE BAKER

Community Living Dufferin (CLD) has developed a new social enterprise initiative designed to create jobs for some of our community's most vulnerable residents.

Currently unnamed, the venture is more than a year in the making and aims to plug what CLD staff claims is a "sizable hole" in our community. Introduced by Robert Bingham, the local organization's executive director, the initiative is expected to create more than 100 jobs in Orangeville by fall.

"What we're doing is creating a whole new program, a whole new entity with broad visions as to how we can ensure the people we support who want to work are able to do so, while also addressing the fact we don't have funding we need to improve on certain programs," said Karen Murphy-Fritz, spokesperson for CLD. "We're excited about this and the opportunities and possibilities it opens up for people in our community."

Currently, Community Living Dufferin operates its Employment Plus program, which provides 34 individuals with employment and volunteer opportunities across Dufferin County. While that initiative has been very successful since its launch back in 1989, Ms. Murphy-Fritz noted most of the opportunities provided are similar in nature. As such, CLD is looking to "branch out" and do even more through this new venture.

Ms. Murphy-Fritz notes the new organization will go some way towards plugging the gap the provincial government created last year when it closed the organization's QPAC packaging plant. The business had been in place for 47 years prior to its closure and provided employment to more than 30 individuals.

"Due to new government regulations, we had to close our site down last December. That left pretty much all of the people who worked there unemployed, so it clearly left a huge void," Ms. Murphy-Fritz said. "It was Robert's vision to be able to fill that void. By creating jobs ourselves, that's what we aim to do. A lot of our people have the skillsets, have the qualifications, we just need to provide them with the opportunity."

When asked what these individuals have been doing on a day-to-day basis since the plant closed, Karen admitted the majority have been left to their own devices.

"They either stay home, or occupy themselves," she said. "Only a few transitioned into our day programs that we offer upstairs. The primary goal of this initiative is to help these people get back working again."

The new business specializes in food preparation and sales. It currently boasts two locations in the community, with two more set to be announced this week.

"For the past four of five months, we've operated Grizzlies Grub out of Georgian College. We have a partnership with them where we operate the cafeteria for students. We do that on Tuesdays and Wednesdays," Ms. Murphy-Fritz said. "Come the fall, we'll be operating that five days a week, offering 'grab and go' foods such as wraps, sandwiches, pizza, muffins and baked goods. We also have a partnership with Mochaberry, which allows us to sell teas and coffee at the site."

Such was the success of Grizzlies Grub, the organization recently opened a second cafeteria, inside the County of Dufferin building on Zina St. That facility is open Monday to Friday, from 8:30 a.m. to 4:30 p.m. While she couldn't disclose what, exactly, the two new opportunities were, Ms. Murphy-Fritz did disclose they were potential partnerships with the Town of Orangeville, which she hopes to be able to announce by the end of this week.

While the business, which Karen con-

"I find people don't give individuals with developmental disabilities enough credit for what they can accomplish. What we're doing, we hope, is our way of showing people that they're just as capable as you and I are at doing their jobs."

Karen Murphy-Fritz
Community Living Dufferin

firmed is for-profit, includes customer service positions at the two cafeteria locations, there are also numerous food prep positions available. The bulk of the food prep work will be carried out at the CLD building on County Road 3.

"Employment Plus operates a baking and cooking group, so all the food will be done here and taken over to our locations on a daily basis. Absolutely everything will be freshly made daily," Ms. Murphy-Fritz said.

While this will, predominantly, benefit individuals involved with CLD, Karen says the new venture has opened its doors to both Family Transition Place (FTP) and Dufferin Child and Family Services (DCAFS).

"All of our opportunities will be extended to the women FTP support, while also providing job opportunities to the youth DCAFS support who have mental health issues," Ms. Murphy-Fritz said.

The main aim for this social enterprise initiative is to allow CLD to better stand on its own two feet, and rely less on government assistance.

"Our efforts to find meaningful jobs in the traditional ways has had mixed success. Turning the tables and creating social enterprise opportunities where (our individuals) are the employer/boss making fair wages is a concept we believe is worth exploring," she said. "This is a concept that will pull this marginalized group of people out of chronic poverty and social isolation."

She added, "With the current climate in our sector, we are bracing ourselves for substantial cuts to our agencies budgets, somewhere in the region, potentially, of $500,000, so we are hopeful this initiative will help us to become less reliant on government funding and more self-sustaining. We see a vision and opportunity to assist not only a marginalized population, but our community too in fulfilling a need that is currently wanting."

A long-term goal, Ms. Murphy-Fritz states, is to eventually raise enough money to help individuals go into business for themselves.

"We'd love to be in a position to help someone wanting to start up their own business. Our vision would be to provide an interest-free loan to get things started, then offer them the support and guidance they may need to build their business up," Ms. Murphy-Fritz said.

She concluded, "I find people don't give individuals with developmental disabilities enough credit for what they can accomplish. What we're doing, we hope, is our way of showing people that they're just as capable as you and I are at doing their jobs. This initiative gives them choice, self-respect and purpose."

The power of social media

You would think that any society that has the technology to travel several light years through space and visit another planet while remaining undetected would be a pretty smart bunch, and pretty sneaky.

I guess even aliens have the occasional flying saucer driver who misses a turn and has an accident.

That seems to be the case near Roswell, New Mexico, where in 1947 a backseat driver in a flying saucer told the pilot to turn left at the next cloud, but realized his mistake and yelled "No!!! I meant right!! Turn right!!!"

It was too late and their small silver coloured space craft crashed in the New Mexico desert scattering debris and little aliens all over the parched ground.

It was a good thing a local yokel went out to investigate because he found the remains of the flying saucer complete with strange hieroglyphics and some kind of high strength super lightweight metal material – unknown on this earth.

Of course the U.S. Air Force arrived and took over the investigation which included retrieving the debris and several alien bodies.

By some reports one of the little tiny aliens was still alive. He was taken back to the nearest Air Force base, where in a strange turn of events, it was the alien who was prodded and probed for a change.

Officially the Air Force said it was a weather balloon that crashed.

Yes, the old weather balloon excuse.

More weather balloons seem to crash than go airborne. Maybe they should spend more time perfecting a balloon that can actually get off the ground and stay aloft.

By the 1970's the story of the crash at Roswell had morphed into a giant conspiracy theory with entire books written about the incident. They demanded answers and claimed the local air base, dubbed Area 51, held the debris and kept the alien bodies on ice.

Hundreds of people were interviewed about the incident. Unfortunately, none of those interviewed had any real knowledge of what had occurred and their reports were mostly hearsay that they picked up from others, who had talked to others, who new others, who had known the guys involved in picking up the debris.

In the past few weeks, a fellow decided that it was time to learn the truth, and if enough people could amass with a common goal, they could storm through the desert, infiltrate Area 51, find the aliens, and finally get the truth out to the public.

This is where the impact of social media really shows its power. He created a Facebook event page called "Storm Area 51, They Can't Stop All of Us."

Already, 1.1 million people and counting have signed up to go on the excursion. Another million or so are "interested" in attending.

That's pretty impressive. They plan to meet at the Roswell tourist centre prior to starting the cross-desert trek.

Parking is going to be a nightmare, so try renting a small compact car or moped if you plan to attend.

The Air Force has to take some blame for the rumors surrounding this particular military base.

If its supposed to be a secret, and you give it a name like Area 51, you can pretty much expect a lot of interest from inquiring minds. You might as well hang a highly visible banner naming it Super Secret Air Force Base X.

Perhaps if they gave it a real name like Air Force Base Gilligan, there wouldn't be so many conspiracy theories surrounding it.

Of course the signs stating guards are

BRIAN LOCKHART
FROM THE SECOND ROW

'authorized to use deadly force' that greet you when getting too close to the facility seem to imply the public isn't welcome to take a tour.

How a single guy can rally 2 million people for a common cause without even leaving his mom's basement certainly is a sign of the times.

It also brought him some unwanted attention when authorities paid him a visit to inquire why he was planning to trespass on a secure federal facility.

He told them it was just a 'joke' while smiling uncomfortably with beads of perspiration pouring from his forehead and nervously glancing at the imposing government vehicle parked in the driveway.

The men in black told him they didn't find it to be funny.

If a single guy could rally that many people in a short time, the power of socially connected media could one day really change the course of world events.

I was thinking of attending this middle of the desert rally, however my tinfoil hat is still at the cleaners and my moped is in the shop having a turbocharger installed.

Editorial

The saga is over

Shelburne's saga of the summer came to an emphatic close on a stuffy night inside Town Hall last Wednesday (July 10).

It was a result that shocked some, but delighted many. A unanimous, 7-0 vote in favour of keeping the 140-year-old Shelburne Police Service. It was clear to see just how much this decision meant to some in the community, with booming cheers echoing around Council Chambers in the immediate aftermath of the vote. Shelburne Police Chief Moore was, seemingly, as happy as anyone else in the room, beaming from ear to ear having witnessed firsthand an incredible display of support in the local force.

Not that that particular point was ever in question. When Council first initiated the process to request a costing proposal from the Ontario Provincial Police last year, it was made crystal clear it was done on the understanding that Shelburne did not have a policing problem, rather a police station problem.

The current facility, located within Town Hall, has long been considered inadequate to house the Shelburne force's at-present 23 members.

Initially, the ask was for the municipality to find the funds required to build a brand new facility, something that would likely cost, at the very least, $6 million. Unfortunately, the Town simply is not in a position to levy up that kind of dough to construct a new station. Nor is it in a position to borrow the money in order to pay for it.

Shelburne CAO Denyse Morrissey informed Council last month that the community was coming dangerously close to maxing out its borrowing capacity. Simply put, having secured long-term debt to help pay for substantial upgrades to the Town's water treatment facility and much-needed work on one of its municipal wells, there's very little left to address what is, truthfully, an equally important piece of infrastructure.

This is where the problems arose and the debate over whether or not the municipality could afford to keep its own police force originated. At most, the Town can afford to invest $3.8 million towards renovating the existing station. But, once that's done, that's it. The Town will find itself in the precarious position of, potentially, not being able to fund another major project for several years.

We have always been advocates of the Shelburne Police Service. Inwardly, we believe any community that can afford to maintain its own police force should do so. Admittedly, however, heading into the vote, we had concerns over whether or not the municipality could, in fact, continue to afford SPS. Once dubbed the fastest growing town in Ontario, we're expecting to see two new major subdivisions come to fruition in the near future. That will, presumably, mean the local force will soon be on the lookout for some new officers. Forgetting for a minute the added annual cost of that, where, exactly, are these new officers going to be stationed?

Current plans to extend the current facility would see the station grow to approximately 8,760 square feet. Considering the station, in its current shape, is already bursting at the seams, we wonder if an extension would be enough to meet the force's demands five, or ten years in the future.

While it has already been determined Shelburne cannot afford a new station, we question if throwing $3.8 million at an aged facility simply because that appears to be the only realistic option on the table is astute. We would hate to see the Town spend that kind of money today, only to find out tomorrow it still wasn't enough. Local Council, as well as the Shelburne Police Services Board has their work cut out to come to a reasonable, workable solution for all.

Of course, one potential solution down the road could be the development of a regional police force. If, like Shelburne's Council, Orangeville decides against signing a contract with the OPP, there may be potential for a partnership that would benefit both municipalities down the line. As the saying goes – when one door closes, another opens. We sense another debate may yet be on the horizon.

OPS investigating trailer theft

The Orangeville Police Service is investigating the theft of two travel trailers from Orangeville properties yesterday.

On Wednesday, July 10, 2019 at approximately 3:30 a.m., a 40 foot travel trailer was stolen from a fenced compound at 50 Centennial Road in Orangeville.

The travel trailer is described as a 2013 Forest River Salem Villa Classic, white, 40 feet long, tandem axle, with two small entrance doors and a large patio door on the right side of the trailer. The trailer had licence plate number K9632J attached to the rear.

Security video footage shows the trailer being towed away by a burgundy Ford F-150 pick-up truck, with a 4 door cab and running boards. There were at least three people in the truck and involved in the theft.

On Thursday, July 11, 2019, at 9:30 a.m., it was discovered that a second travel trailer had been stolen from the rear of a business at 70 Centennial Road in Orangeville. Security video footage revealed that the trailer was stolen at approximately 10:30 p.m., Wednesday night.

The second trailer is described as a 2015

Forest River Wildwood travel trailer, white, 31 feet long with tandem axles. The trailer had licence plate number L9847S attached to the rear.

Although the two towing vehicles are different, it is believed that the two incidents are connected.

Police are continuing their investigation and would like to hear from anyone who may be able to assist with these investigations in any way.

Anyone having further information is encouraged to call the Orangeville Police Service at 519-941-2522 or Crime Stoppers at 1-800-222-TIPS (8477) or online at www.crimestoppersdm.com.

Mansfield Sr. Cubs come out on top in Orangeville game

Written By BRIAN LOCKHART

The Mansfield Senior Cubs had one of their best offensive games this season when they travelled to Orangeville to take on the Giants on Sunday (July 14) afternoon.

The game started off well with a single from T.J. Linger that brought in two first inning runs.

A walk put the first man on base in the second inning and that was followed up with a single from Jake Newton that resulted in an over throw at first base that allowed another runner to cross the plate.

The start of the fourth saw the Mansfield drop two outs on a double play from second to first, but they rallied with a double that put two men on base.

Logan Wallace hit a nice one to bring in the forth Mansfield run in the game.

That was followed up with another fourth inning run when Brad Pendleton hit a single and a Cubs player crossed the plate.

The rest of the game saw the Cubs keep up the pressure with a lot of hits and some very good defensive posturing in the field.

The left the diamond with an 11 – 2 win.

After the weekend the New Lowell Knights maintain first place in the 14 team North Dufferin Baseball League senior division. They have a 17 – 4 – 1 record so far for the season.

The Clearview Orioles are in second place with a 16 – 4 – 1 record.

They are followed by the Ivy Leafs, the Bolton Brewers, and the Orangeville Giants.

The Cubs have two games left on the regular season schedule.

They will be on their home diamond in Their final game of the schedule is slated for July 28, when the travel to Alliston to take on the Athletics with an 8:00 p.m. game.

week.

The North Dufferin Baseball League junior division will wrap up the regular season this weekend with a final double header between the Orillia Royals and the Ivy Blues.

After the Midland Twins were dropped from the line-up earlier in the season the League is down to four teams going into the playoffs.

The Twins were forced to resign after forfeiting two games. According to League rules, two forfeits in the regular season disqualifies a team from the schedule.

The Mansfield Cubs are at the bottom of the standings this year having won only two of 14 outings as of this past weekend.

The Orangeville Rockies are currently in first place but that could all change this

The Rockies have completed their schedule with a 9 – 5 – 1 record.

Ivy is only two points behind them with three games still to go. Ivy could take over the lead if they come out on top in two of those games.

The Orillia Royals are in third spot with 12 points – five behind Ivy. The two teams have three scheduled games this week.

Orillia could possibly move into second place if they manage to defeat Ivy in all three games.

In the first round of playoffs the Cubs will be up against who ever manages to finish in first place when the dust settles from the final few games this week.

The schedule for the playoffs will be posted once the standings are finalized.

“I like having my friends here,” said Mansfield Cubs tyke right fielder / second baseman, Kai Boland of why he likes playing baseball. “It’s a team so you can have fun and no one will blame you if you make a mistake. If people are just goofing off, it’s not a good team to play on. It means they won’t put in any effort. It’s good to have a team that likes to work but also likes to have fun.”

When he’s not on the diamond Travis keeps busy playing tennis and plays basketball for fun and plans to get involved in basketball league.

We have been provided with Family Passes for the MoD that can be signed out by our patrons. Our Readers Write

Glad it's all over

As a newbie in town, I remained neutral on the OPP vs SPS issue because I haven't been here long enough.

The reason I attended council meetings was because I was lonely with no friends here, and wanted something to do. My husband would put my son to bed every second Monday as I excitedly attended my first Town Council meeting, only to find six other Shelburne residents there. No matter, I quickly made friendships with all six, happy to finally have friends here.

Every second Monday I would see the same six faces attend the meetings. We watched and listened to Mayor Wade Mills and the other Town Councillors tackle important issues. The issue of arsenic levels in our water came up one meeting. Then a few meetings later, the six of us residents learned with dismay that the Provincial government did not come through with the funding to fix the water. I was appalled. I did not see the town fill the hall and demand our MPP for the funding that was expected for clean water in Shelburne.

Yet when the police issue came up, the hall was filled. Yes, this was/is a very important issue. Jobs were at stake, community safety was at stake, and a historical institution in Shelburne was in jeopardy. But what puzzled me is how some of the people in town handled it. They yelled into the microphone, they were rude to the councillors, and when I went up to the microphone merely to correct one resident, she started arguing with me rather than put her hand up to have her turn... and after the meeting, another lady came up and rudely started speaking to me until I asked her for her name. A third lady was so upset about it, that she was rude to me in her store outside of the meeting. I was just clarifying something. This was not war.

Although it was truly wonderful to see the hall full, it was truly horrible to see how some of these people spoke. Some were like bullies. That being said, there were a few people who were very nice, made nice presentations at the microphone politely, followed the process and even treated me nicely when I asked questions, rather than getting defensive.

The Chair of the Police Services Board Mike Fazackerley was one of them, Dan Sample was fabulous, and also, the father of one of officers and also an attendee at the United Trinity Church was gracious. What nice people. That is called public discourse, democracy, and just plain polite.

The Mayor and councillors must have been in such a difficult spot. They've been living in this town, made friendships with the officers, and now as elected officials they have to look out for the Town's budget and taxes and be fiscally responsible. I have to give it to them, they remained calm in the face of some rudeness thrown at them, they answered back politely and treated everyone with respect. They either have thick skin, or are exceptional human beings. Over and over, the town's people came up and said that they would take the tax increases for these officers.

The Town Council voted to keep the Shelburne Police. I have to admit, I am relieved. I moved to this town with my husband and son because it is known for its safe neighbourhoods and friendly residents. But the town also knows that one of the presentations included an eventual 14 percent increase to keep the police. What's ironic, is that our council doesn't even get paid full-time to be our councillors, deputy mayor or mayor. If anything, there should be a tax levy to pay them full-time to do the job they are doing.

This year we are having an increase of just below 3 percent for our taxes (if I'm correct). With over 2,000 residents coming into our town by the end of next year, we will have a huge increase in revenue. That's a huge growth. Our councillors put themselves last, and voted to save the jobs of our officers only because we love these officers, heck, my 6 year old son loves sitting in the drivers seat and pressing the blaring siren at every festival. But, God knows they are not cheap.

For every person that came out for these police meetings, I invite them to join me in these meetings with the six other regulars to discuss our water, land, developments and also our councillors' salaries so that they can actually get paid full-time one day. We should challenge our MPP for the water issue.

I truly hope now that the police issue is "over", people still come to the meetings, but be polite in their demeanour, treat each other with respect, and be as everyone knows Shelburne as: "the friendly town".
